

As fake as Tara Reid's left nipple and maybe even more fun to watch as it walks unsupported down the street.

It's All Lies

sunday, january 01, 2006

New Compassionism: US withdraws 'New Year's Resolution' no. 1.433b and nails '95 New theses of commitment' on Iraqi Govt. gates.

IZVESTIYA TOKYO BRANCH -

The US takes back New Year's resolution number 1.433b; to withdraw from cold-war era nuclear threats of their weapons stockpiles. Citing 'enemy state tantrums' and the recent blurt "heck, it' d be a shame to waste the US tax payers' defense money" as justification, the Bush administration has given the go-ahead to point warheads at random new non-compliant nations. The same unnamed source also pointed out that "just because other nations have shied away from using nuclear power, people in high government positions have indicated a willingness to be more budget-friendly AND cutting edge politically speaking by re-branding nuclear potential. We just kinda figured if we can re-brand Iran so then why couldn't we do an about turn, too?"

While on the book-signing tour for the 1st installment of his autobiography 'Walking on Ice, a Modern Hero', President Bush evaded questions by referring to the so-called 'Theses' nailed on the gates of the previous articles

Iran President bans all Western music
- rest of the world supports ban on "You've Had A Bad Day"

Paris turns over a new leaf

"Kerry Packer Dies" headline wrap up

Tori Amos's Piano speaks out about public dispute over authorship, solo career

iPod sinks begging market - new markets emerge

SAG since '43!

My dear friends:

Mr T defeats Iraqi insurgency

Chuck Norris Facts about Chuck Norris - yes, that Chuck Norris

Tom begs Nicole to adopt his newborn child

contributors

solidgranite

Mr Smithers

smoochypoochy

Sardiney

MrOrange

the reviewer

Monty got a raw deal

Rant

ChuckyCheeseStinks

Rabbit

Dr. Veritas

Orson Wells

Turntable Slave

Coco Nut III

links

BBC

New York Times

Guardian

Smoking Gun

Defamer.com

about it's all lies

It's not "The Onion", "The Chaser" or "Private Eye", but it is as fake as Tara Reid's left nipple and maybe even more fun to watch as it walks unsupported down the street.

newly formed Iraqi government. "No, sir, I don't know how they got there at 2:30 AM, I mean -- ok, I didn't just say that, ya hear, or you'll be extradited -- (chuckles) Heck no, what I meant to say was I don't know who's behind these 'Theses', but I'll tell you my friend, I can't say our great American people, or any real patriots of the free world for that matter, can disagree with the tenets held within. Ok that'll be all. (leaves, returns) Oh, and y'all be sure to check the online version of the Theses at www.USdemands.gov"

If you would like to contribute, email its_all_lies_blog@hotmail.com and we may reply.

When visiting the aforementioned website, our staff found the following statement: "If you don't don't do as we demand on www.USdemands.gov, and don't comply with our nuclear moral standards set out in the document 'how to invent new legislature and moral standards for bombing upon invasion of foreign territories', we'll consider you a subversive nation, and a direct threat to us.

A warning list of nations is listed next:

United Kingdom
Uzikistan
Holland
'Germany, France and those other eupeuan countries'
Iceland
The Cyprus, 'if they don't pull out of Syria'

The paper continues: "You have 14 days to withdraw your official positions, or we'll either aim one at you, or force all of your government members to attend the Donald Rumsfeld lecture series 'non-white, foreign and creepy: a global threat'." The national office for foreign hostilities, Washinton DC, has declined to comment on this leak.

posted by mrorange at 12:36 pm

0 comments:

Post a Comment

links to this post:

Create a Link

<< Home