

As fake as Tara Reid's left nipple and maybe even more fun to watch as it walks unsupported down the street.

It's All Lies

saturday, february 04, 2006

Thatcher: "I feel like a woman"

Décolletage Moment magazine, Paris

Mrs Margaret Thatcher during an exclusive interview with DM has revealed that she is turning a new leaf in the books of history. "We have always felt that something was missing. We feel like we are now finally blossoming into mature womanhood." These cryptic references to coming-of-age and into high society have been sparked by the recent online publication French Maid TV, subtitled 'the How-to video by French Maids'. Rumours of Mrs. Thatcher - one of the most sought-after young women in Britain - being available on the market, have been rampant for months in London.

"Elton and I"(referring to her dinner guest), mrs Thatcher continues in a moment of striking intimacy, "have for years discussed ways to find true enlightenment for me. At one time, we considered gender-reassignment, but this was during a very stressful and confused period during the eighties. It was not for me. For work has always taxed me so - and we have never had the opportunity to properly develop our personal identities. And the time feels right now so we are today relishing finding our inner bunny-girl and we encourage others to do likewise. "

previous articles

Santa Barbara Postal Service branch trials new motivational techniques
 J.J Abrams can't wait for M:I-3 press junket
 PM Meets with Sporting Youth
 More Love
 Mother Teresa and Tom Jones love child revealed
 Catholic Church Split on Brokeback Mountain
 Fatah supporters blame election loss to Hamas on 'bad party name'
 Mozart 'miffed' at 250th birthday celebrations
 Lewis Carroll tells Mozart: "Grow up"
 Bush supports disgraced novelist James Fey with shock announcement

contributors

solidgranite
 Mr Smithers
 smoochypoochy
 Sardiney
 MrOrange
 the reviewer
 Monty got a raw deal
 Rant
 ChuckyCheeseStinks
 Rabbit
 Dr. Veritas
 Orson Wells
 Turntable Slave
 Coco Nut III

links

BBC
 New York Times
 Guardian
 Smoking Gun
 Defamer.com

"There is a great deal to be learnt from these Americans. Video podcasting, learning french, and how to please an audience with mere pillow-fight or a hoover - had we known these effective direct-action tactics in 1982 the world would be different."

Mrs. Thatcher goes on to relate the future of parliamentary work to dress code and thinking different. "No, we don't think we are a corporate stooge who is stuck in history. Quite the opposite, Forget the Conservatives. We are now fully and funly Liberal, with a pinch of sexy Marxist nostalgia - after all, we have always had a secret habit of all things hairy. "

The British Liberal Democrat HQ reps fell suddenly ill when contacted, and declined to comment officially.

French Maid TV

posted by mrorange at 6:26 am

---

0 comments:

Post a Comment

about it's all lies

It's not "The Onion", "The Chaser" or "Private Eye", but it is as fake as Tara Reid's left nipple and maybe even more fun to watch as it walks unsupported down the street.

If you would like to contribute, email its\_all\_lies\_blog@hotmail.com and we may reply.

links to this post:

Create a Link

<< Home

